SAW V*, THE LATEST INSTALLMENT OF THE HORROR MOVIE FRANCHISE, HITS THEATERS
OCTOBER 24

September 29, 2008—"Hello...I want to play a game," those are the immortal words Saw's sadistic purveyor of self-imposed twisted justice Jigsaw utters to his victims as they come to. And if you hear those words you're soon to find yourself in a world of hurt. Back for the fifth installment of the Saw horror series this Halloween (in theaters October 24 to be exact), moviegoers will once again cringe in their seats as blood, guts and body parts are up for grabs.

And because every sick & twisted horror honcho needs an explosive soundtrack, Artists' Addiction Soundtracks has compiled a list of incendiary artists such as Ministry, Skinny Puppy, Testament, and Revolting Cocks among the 14 tracks for the volatile digital-only release.

What started out as a "little" indie horror movie back in 2004 has turned into a juggernaut go-for-the-throat franchise so gruesome you want to turn away, yet so compelling you just can't. And fittingly enough, the movie soundtracks have always been amicable counterparts assaulting the senses in a fashion that would make Jigsaw proud.

Adding to the sonic assault to Saw V is Charlie Clouser (ex-Nine Inch Nails), no stranger to the Saw soundtracks, with his cuts "Trap Attacks" and "What It Takes," as well as Filter's remix version of "What's Next." Other killer songs include: Testament's "True Believer," Ministry's "Death and Destruction (Remix)," Prong's "The Banishment," Die Krupps' "The Dawning of Doom," Skinny Puppy's "ugLi" and The Revolting Cocks' "Wizard of Sextown."

Artists' Addiction Soundtracks' Jonathan Platt says of the Saw V Soundtrack: "We feel that we have put together a collection of songs that really mirrors the chaos onscreen. All of our acts are big fans of the Saw series and were excited to be a part of the soundtrack and I think that energy really comes across."

This Halloween belongs to Saw V!!
